

MATTHEW COX

TAKING CARE OF YOUR TORII TABLE

As your torii table has a natural oiled finish with waxed and oiled brass elements, it is protected, but won't be completely impervious to marking.

Over time, your table will build up the rich, warm patina of time and use. To ensure the longevity, and the continued beauty of the surface, please consider the guidance that follows.

TIMBER CARE

This is a traditional finish that we love to use on wooden surfaces. Our oiled finishes are hard wearing and resistant to most spillages. However, any spills should be wiped immediately to avoid any chance of obvious marking. Avoid dragging objects across the surface and to prevent marking, ensure the surface is protected from extreme heat.

A soft, lightly dampened cloth should be used to clean if needed. Periodically, the wooden elements should be wiped with Osmo spray cleaner to clean and moisturise the timber.

WAXED BRASS CARE

Your brass accessories have an oiled and waxed surface and as such are protected from light day-to-day use. If you would like to avoid any obvious marking of the brass, please remove any spillages as soon as they happen. Most liquids and foodstuffs are relatively harmless. Anything acidic such as fruit juice & coffee must be removed as it will etch the surface, as it does with marble and stone.

The surface should only be cleaned lightly with a soft cloth or duster. A barely damp soft cloth can be used for anything trickier to remove, but please resist any urge to rub hard. Once wiped clean, the surface may be lightly waxed with a natural beeswax and polished with a soft lint-free cloth. This helps to nourish and protect the surface and will develop a warm and natural patina over time. No abrasive cloth or cleaning agent should ever be used to clean the brass.